

GENERAL CONDITIONS OF USE OF THE WEBSITE

1. Ownership and Legal Notice

The web domain www.cpem2026.com is owned by the Spanish Center of Metrology OA.MP. (hereinafter, CEM). CEM is an autonomous body of the Ministry of Industry and Tourism, Government of Spain. CEM is the Spanish National Metrology Institute. The registered office of CEM is located at Calle Alfar, No. 2, 28760 Tres Cantos. Its VAT number (CIF) is S2817035E.

CEM informs you that access to and use of the website www.cpem2026.com and all its subdomains and directories under it (hereinafter collectively referred to as the Website), as well as services or content obtained through it, are subject to the terms set forth in this Legal Notice, without prejudice to the fact that access to any of these services or content may imply acceptance of additional general conditions. All this aims to fulfill the role of general information and citizen service in accordance with Article 4 of Royal Decree 208/1996, of February 9, regulating information services and citizen attention.

Therefore, if you do not agree with any detailed considerations in this Legal Notice, please do not use the Website, since any use of it or of the services and content included will imply acceptance of the terms contained herein. For these purposes, “user” shall mean any person accessing, browsing, using, or participating in the services and activities conducted on the Website.

The terms and conditions reflected in this Notice may vary without prior notice, so we invite you to review these terms each time you visit the Website. CEM is not responsible for damages caused by the use of the tools and information contained on the Website in connection with decisions on the initiation, development, or result of administrative procedures. Such decisions must be supported by the respective centers, agencies, or departments. In any case, the information and content of this site cannot be invoked in contradictory proceedings with public administration, and CEM assumes no responsibility for any discrepancies that may exist between printed documents issued by competent authorities and the electronic publication on these pages.

2. Use of the Website, its Services, and Content

CEM facilitates free access to the information contained on the Site (texts, graphics, sound files and/or images, photos, designs, or others), however, it is prohibited to:

- Reproduce, copy, distribute, disseminate, publicly communicate, transform or modify without authorization from the legitimate owners or where not legally permitted. However, it is allowed to copy and distribute pages always citing the source and the date of the copy, without tampering with or altering the content and not for direct commercial use. Likewise, CEM authorizes the free download of manuals, printed materials, and information materials included on the Website for purposes of reproduction and distribution, unless otherwise explicitly specified on the Website.
- Violate the rights of CEM or their legitimate owners.
- Use for commercial or advertising purposes other than those legally permitted.

- Attempt to retrieve content by any means other than those available or normal internet use, provided no harm is caused to CEM.

The texts provided on the site are informative only, i.e., have no legal effect. For legal purposes, texts published in official bulletins and journals must be consulted.

Access to the Website and the use that may be made of the information contained therein is the sole responsibility of the user. CEM is not liable for any consequence, damage, or injury that may result from such access or use of information, except for those proceedings arising from the application of legislative provisions strictly in the exercise of its powers.

3. Internet Users' Obligations

Users must comply with the following conditions:

Provide truthful and legal information when required to complete access forms for certain services via the Website, recognizing full responsibility for the information provided. The Site allows the creation of user accounts for citizens and companies interested in using certain services offered.

Authentication is carried out by means of electronic identity card, recognized electronic certificates admitted by the General State Administration, as well as user IDs and passwords supplied by public employment services.

Under no circumstances shall CEM be responsible for content provided by users but will act diligently to remove illegal, immoral, or unlawful content when notified.

Use the site and its services without violating these general conditions or other particular conditions that govern it, as well as existing legislation, good faith, generally accepted practices, or public order.

Not use the Website or its services for unlawful purposes or which may harm CEM or third parties or prevent its normal operation.

4. Quality and Availability of Information and Services

CEM reserves the right to make changes to the site without notice, to update, correct, modify, add, or remove contents or design. The contents and services offered are regularly updated; it is recommended to verify the validity and accuracy of the information and services included on the Website.

CEM does not guarantee perfect operation of the communications network nor the availability of its server. The server may be disconnected without prior notice. CEM is not liable for any damage or injury suffered by users from accessing this server or using the information or applications contained therein.

5. Intellectual and Industrial Property

Both the design of the website and its source codes, as well as logos, trademarks, and other distinctive signs appearing on it, belong to CEM or its partners unless otherwise stated, and are protected by intellectual and industrial property rights, as are the images and other content available on CEM's server.

Use, reproduction, distribution, marketing, public communication, transformation, or any similar activity constitutes a violation of CEM's intellectual property rights unless expressly authorized by CEM. Unauthorized use of information may lead to legal actions.

The license granted to the user to use any Website content is limited to display and private use, provided the content remains intact. Access and navigation imply no transfer, license, or assignment of rights by CEM.

It is not allowed to remove or manipulate copyright notices or other identifying data related to CEM's rights or third parties incorporated into the content, nor to circumvent technical protection devices.

CEM respects intellectual and industrial property rights of others; please contact cem@cem.es if you know of any violations.

6. Frames and Hyperlinks

CEM expressly prohibits "framing" or use by third parties of any mechanisms that alter the Website's design, original configuration, or content.

The Website includes links to third-party websites ("links"), mostly to other public administrations' pages considered of interest to users. CEM assumes no responsibility for the content or connection of these third-party links.

Users or portals are not permitted to link to any CEM webpages without express authorization.

7. Privacy Policy and Personal Data Protection

This portal does not collect personal data without your knowledge nor share it with third parties.

To provide better service and facilitate use, including statistical analysis of pages visited, number of visits, and frequency, Google Analytics is used.

CEM does not use cookies to collect user information or record IP addresses.

The portal contains links to other sites with their own privacy and cookie policies. You may accept or reject third-party cookies via your browser settings.

8. Data Controller

CEM, located at Calle del Alfar 2, 28760 Tres Cantos, is the owner of this Portal and responsible for processing your data, in accordance with Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (GDPR) and Organic Law 3/2018, taking necessary measures to avoid alteration, loss, processing, or unauthorized access.

Personal data collected will be treated confidentially and incorporated into CEM's processing activities.

The updated list of CEM's data processing activities is available at <https://www.mintur.gob.es/es-es/proteccion-datos/Paginas/registro-actividades-tratamiento-datos.aspx>.

9. Purpose, Retention, Assignments, and Transfers

Personal data is collected and processed automatically to manage, provide, extend, and improve services requested by users and to follow up on inquiries. The legal basis for each activity can be consulted in the processing activity register.

Data retention periods depend on applicable regulations and the purpose for which data was obtained.

No data will be shared with third parties unless required by law.

10. Exercise of Rights

You have the right to access, rectify, delete, port, restrict, object to processing, and not be subject to automated decisions regarding your data. Requests can be addressed to the Data Protection Delegate at dpd@mintur.es.

You may also lodge a complaint with the Spanish Data Protection Agency.

Data are collected only via necessary fields in forms; you are responsible for keeping your data up to date.

CEM reserves the right to modify this privacy policy according to legislative or jurisprudential changes, notifying users and requesting acceptance if necessary.

11. Essential Technical Information

CEM obtains only the minimum technical information necessary to provide good service, such as browser type and version, language, and character set, to ensure correct display.

12. Responsibility and Guarantees

CEM declares having taken all necessary measures to ensure the Website's functioning, security in information exchange, and to prevent viruses or harmful components.

CEM is committed to maintaining site availability through announcements on the Website.

13. Applicable Law and Jurisdiction

Spanish law governs any dispute or interpretation of these terms.

For conflict resolution, CEM and the user agree to submit to the courts of the user's domicile, provided it is within Spanish territory.
